THE ONLY TRUCK TOUGH ENOUGH TO HANDLE CHILDHOOD.

The Chevy Astro LT is not your average kiddie carrier. It's also a Chevy Truck. And like every other Chevy Truck, it's one tough cookie. Astro has rock-solid unibody construction, rear-wheel drive and the power of a 190-hp Vortec 4300 V6 with SFI. And it can out-tow most front-wheel-drive minivans by a full ton or more.* But because we know the true test of toughness comes in the form of sweet, freckle-faced cherubs, we also gave Astro a new interior with our standard Scotchgard™ Fabric Protector. There are also dual air bags, up to nine cup holders, and things to keep the little terrors out of trouble like reading lamps, a place to play board games — even rear seat stereo controls are available. After all, kids will be kids. But fortunately for grown-ups, Chevy Trucks will be Chevy Trucks. The most dependable, longest-lasting trucks on the road.†

NEWS FROM AROUND THE WORLD OF DISNEY

Hyperion AN ANIMATION SAGA

Do you recall seeing the Disney animated classic Don Quixote? Remember that great film Hiawatha? Reveled with the rooster hero of the beautiful film Chanticleer?

Of course not—because those films are The Disney That Never Was. This new book by the noted animation historian (and former Disney Channel magazine contributor) Charles Solomon is subtitled "The Stories and Art from Five Decades of Unproduced Animation." In this groundbreaking work, Solomon looks at all of the Disney projects that never made it to completion. The picture that results from Solomon's endeavours is a turbulent and dynamic portrait of an everchanging institution.

"Examining and researching unproduced Disney works of art gives one insight into how the studio functioned creatively," Solomon says. "Inevitably the transitions between projects were neither as smooth or as orderly as one may imagine. At any time, there may have been dozens of works in preproduction.

"What's really interesting is the portrait one gets of Walt Disney, especially for individuals like myself who were too young to have known him. It's amazing to see Walt at work, Walt the man who managed a studio of a 1,000 employees and Walt the dreamer who conceived of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. Today one hears the word wunderkind used frequently. Yet think of it: Walt produced all of the great Mickey Mouse shorts, Snow White, Pinnochio, and Fantasia before he was 40. Animator Bill Peete always said there were three Walts: Walt the genius, Walt the dreamer, and Walt the spoiler. And it wasn't a bad idea, if you had a meeting with him, to call the guardhouse on the lot and check to see which Walt had driven in that day."

The Disney That Never Was (Hyperion; $40; onsale beginning December 1) is one of those must-have treasures for lovers of Disney animation. It paints a compelling portrait of a unique company exploding with creative energies.

Touchstone STEVE MARTIN'S BACK

First he faced the trauma—financial as well as personal!—of his little girl strolling down the aisle. And the travails of Father of the Bride proved a smash at the box office. Now Steve Martin as George Banks (along with Diane Keaton, Kimberly Williams and Martin Short!) is back and facing the greatest traumatic moment of all in his middle age.

That's right, on December 8, Father of the Bride Part 2 comes to a theatre near you. Not only does George learn he's going to be a grandfather, there's a double whammy when wife Annie tells George he's going to be a father again.

Once again Charles Shyer and Nancy Meyers have a family comedy hit on their hands. And who can wait for the return of Martin Short as the flamboyantly funny Franck Egglehoffer, now the coordinator of a double baby shower?

The Disney That Never Was: Salvador Dali and Walt Disney were collaborators on the unproduced short film "Destino."

Celebrating the Season

THE HOLIDAYS ARE MAGICAL.

REGULAR ROUTINES OF SCHOOL AND WORK GIVE WAY to all those fun activities for which we've been waiting all year.

For many, it's an excuse to allow their inner children freedom to play, whether that means drizzling red icing on gingerbread men, wrestling with toy train tracks around a bedecked fir tree, or gathering friends and family for a special night of festivities.

This issue of "Families" is geared to helping you keep the holiday fun going through the new year. Learn how to capture your family's memories year-round, from the grand celebrations to the simple joys of everyday life. Start the new year by getting organized—you can convert your family's calendar, to-do lists and address books to your home computer. Your home computer makes organization easy and effective. And, most timely of all, read about some great, classic gift ideas for that last-minute shopping.

From everyone at The Disney Channel Magazine:
Happy Holidays!

Remembering the Good Times FAMILY MEMOIRS

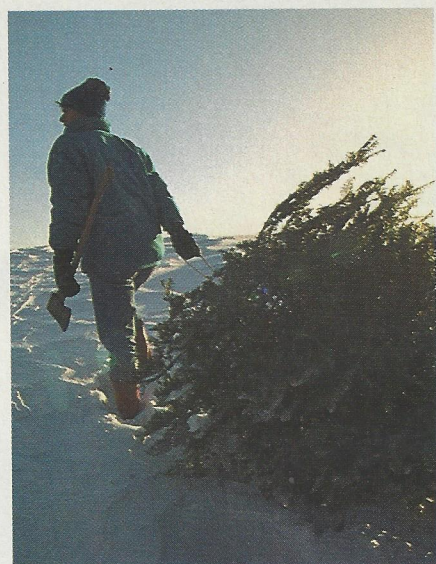

THE HOLIDAYS ARE FULL OF SPECIAL MEMORIES—but so are the days and months that follow. Often, family albums are filled with photos and comments that commemorate the big events and grand occasions. But those special moments of daily life are too soon forgotten.

So says Carolyn Blaylock, a greeting card artist and mother of three who decided to start her own family memoir book when she realized that she had almost no notes or special information about her own childhood.

Going through a box of her mother's old things, Blaylock found a note: "Carolyn thinks diapers are a hat." That single, small scrap of paper made her long for more of the special everyday details of her family's past.

Blaylock believes every family should keep a journal/album and fill it with all kinds of notes and clippings, from funny moments at the dinner table to favorite television shows, outings, and adventures. Photographs could capture the family's Valentines or this spring's basket of just-dyed Easter eggs.

Blaylock says families need a place to record the fun details that would be forgotten if not written down: the time the tent filled up with two inches of rain, forcing the family to evacuate the camp site for a hotel; the note one child wrote to the tooth fairy, describing the discom-

Your best way to lose weight fast!

Adding upper-body exercise to your walk helps you burn more calories in each workout — 53% more than motorized treadmills. You can burn an average of 850 calories per hour. This not only helps you lose weight quickly, it raises your metabolism so you continue to burn calories at a fast rate, even when you're not exercising. Combine regular WalkFit workouts with a sensible diet, and you, too, will discover the secret to fast, easy weight loss!

Get a superior total-body workout!

NordicTrack's WalkFit® exerciser works both your upper and lower body for a total-body workout. It combines a treadmill for lower-body exercise with moveable arm poles for upper-body exercise. The sturdy arm poles offer positive resistance on both the push and the pull to strengthen and tone your arms, chest and back.

And WalkFit is nonmotorized so you get all the benefits of a workout, not a machine's motor. In fact, research shows you can get a 50% more efficient cardiovascular workout than with an ordinary motorized treadmill.

Safer and easier to use than motorized treadmills!

No special coordination is required to use WalkFit. Just hop on and start walking! It's safer and easier to use than motorized treadmills because WalkFit starts and stops when you do. You'll walk against adjustable resistance on a specially designed, non-jarring treadmill deck. And the fully adjustable arm poles let you vary the resistance on the upper-body exerciser. Or you can tighten them to use as stationary handlebars.

And a WalkFit workout is easy on your body, because the treadmill is designed with a version of the same flywheel as the legendary NordicTrack® ski exerciser. This unique system makes the WalkFit exceptionally smooth and easy to use. You won't experience any undue stress on your knees, hips or back.

HOT TRENDS: COOL COATS

Staying warm is cool with this season's jackets and coats for kids. This year's outdoor apparel is bright, patterned, comfortable, and interesting. Joan Cooper, executive vice president and a founder of Biobottoms in Petaluma, California says that a hot fabric, polar fleece, has revolutionized the market.

It's a spun and pressed polyester—totally synthetic—that also breathes, providing more comfort than other synthetics. "Designers have been inspired by this fabric," she says. "It's lightweight, but warm, more comfortable for kids, machine washable and not itchy."

Sylvia Veh, a children's wear designer for Land's End, in Dodgeville, Wisconsin, says the firm's coats are cut in classic lines, but are not as short as before. "The layering kids are doing requires a longer jacket," she says. Dressy coats are definitely out after toddler sizes, Veh adds. Parents are now investing in well-made, unisex wraps that can be handed down to siblings and friends of either gender.

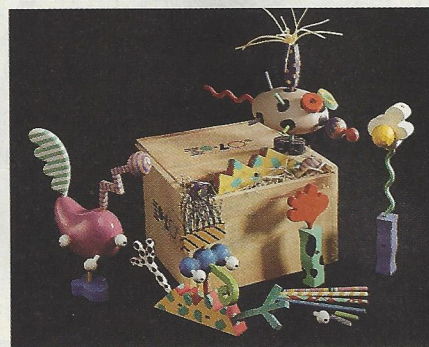

For catalogs:

fort of a loose tooth in great detail in hopes the donation would be generous; reflections from each member of the family about how a cross-country move affected him or her.

Blaylock also thinks families should record their favorite recipes, list places they went together, and note sports victories and other accomplishments. "I want my grandchildren to be able to step right into my kids' world," Blaylock says. Because many people find completely blank pages daunting, Blaylock has written and illustrated a book, Seasons in Our Family (Sourcebooks, 1995), to preserve a year of family history. The book reserves pages for all those special notes, photos, reflections, and keepsakes.

"For children, the journal may not seem all that valuable now," says Blaylock. "But later, they'll go back, and it will trigger all kinds of special memories."

The Right Stuff SMART TIMELESS GIFTS

Sometimes the holidays feel like final exam week: the pressure is on and the moment of truth draws nigh. And when is it not a challenge to find that perfect gift which conveys a true understanding of and appreciation for the recipient?

Those who make gift-giving consultation their profession say finding the perfect gift involves no more than asking the right questions. Cherie Brown, a consultant with Neiman Marcus in Dallas, thinks the best gift ideas come from analyzing a person's hobbies, wishes, and interests. Is that person practical or frivolous? Likes golf? Riding horses? Reading books? "Tapping into a person's cherished interests," Brown says, "generates great gift ideas."

Brown likes a theme when giving gifts:

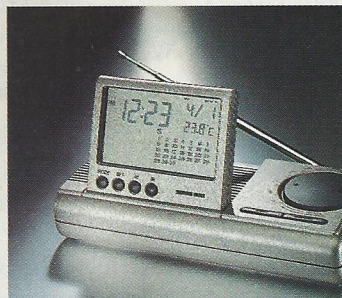

wrapping a travel clock with an atlas; tying a stuffed cat on top of a box of cat stationery for a feline fanatic. "It's the creative part of giftgiving that's fun."

sales consultants say timeless toys are beloved by children of all ages. Teddy bears, classic reproductions of favorite toys, model trains, and games all bring back the playfulness of childhood and holidays past.

For gadget lovers, Louis Soucie, spokesman for The Sharper Image in San Francisco, likes almost anything mechanical, from sleek clock radios to practical go-anywhere day-packs. Gadgets are great for those who like getting something useful but who appreciate high-tech features.

Here are some timeless, classic gift ideas suitable for almost anyone, suggested by expert buyers and shoppers nationwide:

IF...

"If cats could fly....If mice were hair....If worms had wheels....If frogs ate rainbows...." So starts If, by L.A. artist Sarah Perry (The J. Paul Getty Museum and Children's Library Press, 1995). Suitable for both children and adults, If is designed to stimulate creativity through 20 magical watercolors. "I hope the book will inspire children to get excited about making art and creating their own stories," says Perry.

CARDS AS ART

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS card was a postcard created by English illustrator John Calcott Horsley in 1843. The idea of sending cards at the holidays took off over the next 100 years. Now, some cards are art. The Museum of Modern Art in New York commissions artists to design cards for the season. Some are three-dimensional, self-standing paper sculptures; others are tree ornaments; one even includes stickers to allow recipients to dress their own snowmen.

- BEARS IN BEAR BOXES: Beary clever gifts, these 16" and 21" fellows are handcrafted and handpainted with plaid paws ($40 and $50, FAO Schwarz).

- THE GO-ANYWHERE FANNY DAYPACK: This walking

pack is perfect for day hikes, cycling, city touring. It includes two 20 oz. water bottles plus room for a jacket, lunch, camera, maps, or books ($49.95, The Sharper Image).

AN ANTIQUE TOY...OR A REPRODUCTION:

The duck featured on page 10, "Dr. Doodle," was designed in 1931 by the wife of Fisher Price company co-founder Irving Price.

- It's 13 inches tall on a mahogany stand ($125, FAO Schwarz).
- EAMES HOUSE OF CARDS: Make a three dimensional structure—or an architectural statement—using 32 cards, each depicting a different image from the animal, mineral, and vegetable kingdom ($28.95, Museum of Modern Art [MOMA]).
- THE ULTIMATE COFFEE TABLE TOY: Zolos are hand-carved, handpainted wood squiggles, wiggles, blobs, and globs that can be put together in endless ways, for ages 5 to adult ($189, FAO Schwarz).
- THE A-FRAME: A flat, colorful panel of engineering polymer is sized for a 4-inch photo, designed by Raul Barbieri ($20, Museum of Modern Art).
- A COMPACT CLOCK RADIO: This includes an AM/FM radio, two time-zone alarm, room thermometer, timer, snooze button and calendar ($45, The Sharper Image).

Strategies

ORGANIZED BY COMPUTER

There's nothing like a new year to spur interest in getting organized. Clutter-busting experts say the best way to get it all together today is by computer. There is a wide range of software time-management tools available to systematize the household.

More and more people are using computers to help run their lives more efficiently. According to the Software Publishers Association in Washington, D.C., the personal information management software market rose 22 percent in 1994, to $279.5 million. The price for these organization tools is steeper than for the average calendar, of course: organizing software runs from about $50 to $200

"Most families need both calendar/scheduling help and a better system of managing the family Rolodex," says Jeffrey Mayer, a Chicago-based organization consultant and author of Time Management for Dummies (IDG Books Worldwide, 1995).

"Many get so caught up in the rush to make it to all the activities and errands that they fail to plan it out systematically beforehand," Mayer adds. "More time should be spent planning in advance of doing."

Mayer doesn't advise switching everything to computer; he himself uses an old-fashioned 8 1/2 x 11-inch piece of lined paper for his daily to-do list. Everything that needs to be done should be jotted on the list. "Leave the list in a place where you can use it and make it readily accessible," Mayer suggests. "Cross off each item when it's done—that's the fun part."

Many of the details of family life are well-suited to the computer. Most time-management software includes a name and address system—with a file for taking notes—and an electronic calendar. Names and addresses can be coded by category: you can print out a list of Girl Scout families or a Christmas card list. The computer stores details, too, such as who sent a card last year.

The calendar function saves time because recurring events can be automatically entered by the system. You no longer need to copy birthdays and anniversaries into a new calendar at year-end. Events that occur once a month, weekly, or on alternate weekdays can all be easily recorded.

Print-outs of the master calendar can be stuck on the refrigerator for all to see, says Mayer. "Most people just memorize all this stuff and don't do a good job of writing it down or communicating it to each other."

Some software provides additional features: Starfish's Sidekick software allows you to highlight blocks of time in different colors, separating work and personal activities, for example. Mayer especially likes ACT!, by Symantec Corporation, because of its versatility and options.

Mayer strongly advocates mixing business and personal activities on the same calendar. "There's nothing wrong with it; after all, it's your life," he says.

The average preschooler spends 3 hours a day glued to TV.
Pico makes it a smart 3 hours.

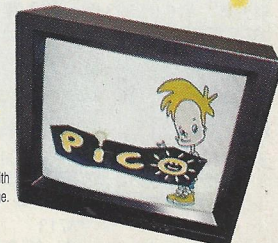

In the first seven years of life, a child's mind is like a sponge. So make sure your kids absorb the right things. You can if you make learning fun with Pico™, the amazing interactive learning system from Sega®. It turns your TV into your children's first computer. And turns on the power of their imaginations. Using a magic pen instead of a mouse and fun "storybook" software that features Pocahontas, Berenstain Bears, the Lion King and 12 more, they will learn reading, numbers, science, art, and music. They can even animate cartoons.

QUICK TIPS TO SIMPLIFY YOUR LIFE

Elaine St. James was a real estate investor and art consultant who looked at her massive calendar filled with commitments and had what she calls an epiphany. St. James immediately scheduled a four-day retreat and started looking for ways to simplify her life. Many of those ideas, and others, are chronicled in her book, Simplify Your Life (Hyperion, 1994).

HERE ARE A FEW OF HER TIPS:

- Get rid of the clutter in your house.
- Leave your shoes at the front door: it cuts down on dirt and turns your home into a sanctuary.
- Drop call waiting.
- Pack your own lunch.
- Take a walk.
- Get up an hour earlier.
- Be in bed by 9 one day a week.
- Trust your intuition.
- Teach your kids the joy of solitude.
- Stop making the bed.
- Keep a journal.
- Watch a sunset.

A JUST BEFORE BEDTIME SNACK

IT'S WINTER. THE DAYS ARE SHORT. THE NIGHTS ARE COLD. At least one good thing about this season is that the kids are less combative about getting into bed at an hour that leaves some time for Mom & Dad to be a couple again.

If the little darlings aren't hungry, that is.

Be prepared. No, not with cookies and milk or old, cold pizza. A warm baked apple not only provides better food value but also a homemade-with-love treat for the young, the hungry, and the soon-to-be sleepy.

Let each one opt for his or her filling for their apple from the two choices offered below. When you have a little extra time, you may want to bake the apples ahead, then store them in the refrigerator to be zapped in a snap in the microwave when the need arises. It's worth the effort. Just think how snuggly the kids will feel after such a warm and homey treat.

BAKED APPLES WITH STUFFING X 2

- 4 large cooking apples
- Stuffing 1 or Stuffing 2
- 4 teaspoons butter or margarine
- Frozen vanilla yogurt or whipped cream (optional)

Core apples and peel about half-down (or peel completely if desired). Place in shallow baking dish. Spoon desired stuffing into hollows. Pour $\frac{3}{4}$ cups water around the apples. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour or until tender. Serve with frozen yogurt or whipped cream, if desired.

Makes 4 servings

STUFFING 1

- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup brown sugar, packed
 - $\frac{1}{4}$ cup old-fashioned oats
 - 2 tablespoons raisins
 - 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- In a small bowl, combine sugar, oats, raisins and cinnamon.

STUFFING 2

- 3 tablespoons chopped walnuts or pecans
 - $\frac{1}{3}$ cup real maple syrup
- In a small bowl, combine nuts and syrup.

Temptation Calls My Name

Travis Tritt Redefines the Sound of Country Music

BY MR. BONZAI

Travis Tritt is that all too rare figure in popular music: a superstar with true depth in his songwriting and singing. In one powerhouse concert, his Disney Channel Going Home special presents virtually every one of Tritt's stack of chartbreaking rockers and heartbreaking ballads. As the "Lone Wolf" himself sums it up: "I'm just a country rock and roll outlaw blues singer running wild."

The Tritt music machine is lean and mean, a hardworking band of country professionals. After a dramatic entrance in fringed red leather on his roaring Harley-Davidson, Tritt opens his show with "Put Some Drive In Your Country." Written two years before his recording debut in 1989, Tritt recalls that "I wrote this song at the graveside of Duane Allman and Berry Oakley, down in Macon, Georgia, when I was playing at a little club in the Best Western hotel there."

As he drives through his hits, we see the honky tonk cats and urban cowgirls faithfully echo his lyrics—a devotional testimony to Tritt's universal appeal. He pays tribute to his heroes: Roy Acuff, George Jones, Waylon Jennings, Stevie Ray Vaughan. Proudly carrying the torch, Tritt defines a new sound in country with his own blend of traditional bluegrass, blue-collar blues, and fiery southern rock.

A native son of Marietta, Georgia, Tritt graduated from high school in 1981. He recorded a demo tape in 1983 at a little studio owned by Danny Davenport, a Warner Bros. promotion man who would help him land his first record deal four years later. Along the way to fortune, Tritt made ends meet as a grocery bagger, carpet layer, printing press operator, air-conditioner salesman, and dues-paying troubadour in Georgia honky tonks and saloons.

The tough early years on the road have yielded a broad range of recent classics, including the uplifting "I'm Gonna Be Somebody," "Anymore," "The Whiskey Ain't Workin'," "T-R-O-U-B-L-E," "Tell Me I Was Dreaming," "Foolish Pride" and the ironic "Ten Feet Tall And Bulletproof."

The son of working class parents, Tritt recalls, "My dad had the opinion that musicians were musicians because they were too lazy to work." He smiles and adds, "He used to say I had a lot better chance being elected President of the United States than making it in the music business."

Tritt hasn't made it to the White House—yet—but "making it in the music business" is an understatement. This special documents the songs that make him a king of country soul and rebel rock, served up from his new album, Greatest Hits—From the Beginning. It includes 10 Number 1 singles from the Tritt catalogue: "Country Club" (1990), "It's All About To Change" (1991), "t-r-o-u-b-l-e" (1992), "A Travis Tritt Christmas: Loving Time Of The Year" (1992) and "Ten Feet Tall And Bulletproof" (1994).

Interweaving these rousing renditions of his hits are scenes of Travis Tritt at home, cooking breakfast, driving his tractor, and kickin' back on the porch with his hound dog and his guitar. There he recalls his first public performance at the age of four in the church choir and marvels at the ovation that foreshadowed his later success.

Tritt lovingly recalls the rich diversity of music in his youth: "Just north of here we'd go up to the bluegrass festivals." He picks a riff and adds, "Then just a little bit to the south you had Macon." With that he gives us a soulful touch of Otis Redding's "Dock Of The Bay." He continues, "In Memphis you had rockabilly and all those things came together with your straight-ahead country that you get at the Grand Ol' Opry. Those things mixed with the gospel influences that I had in church growing up."

Tritt's first single, "Country Club," came out in 1989. As it climbed the charts he joined the ranks of rising country stars Garth Brooks, Clint Black, and Alan Jackson. His debut shook up the country music world and went Top 10. In 1991, he won the Country Music Association's Horizon Award, and in 1993 shared a Grammy with the legendary Marty Stewart. Audiences around the world rocked country style with Tritt at the 1993 Super Bowl in Atlanta's Georgiadome. In 1994, he shared album of the year honors for his rendition of "Take It Easy" on Common Thread: The Songs of the Eagles. By gathering The Eagles for his video he was a pivotal player in the "Hell Freezes Over" reunion.

Tritt attributes the popularity of country music to the fact that "more so than any other kind of music right now, it seems to communicate the average emotions of the everyday ordinary person." While his stage persona is anything but ordinary, Tritt undoubtedly has tapped into the deeper feelings of his diverse fans.

One of Tritt's surprising hits, "Here's A Quarter, Call Someone Who Cares," was a song that might never have been recorded. "That was written strictly for me," he explains. "It was something to get me through a hard time in my life and I think the humor in it was what I was trying to use. One night I was on the stage playing in Texas and something in the back of my head said play that song. I played it in front of an audience never really intending to." It was a hit from that day forward.

Admitting that he was shy and withdrawn as a child, Tritt confides that he is transformed when he gets on stage. Early critics differed in their appreciation of his talents, some arguing that he rocked too much for a country musician, others saying he was a balladeer unfit for his role as a rebel rocker. But Travis Tritt: Going Home proves them wrong: he's always been a certified member of the real "Country Club."

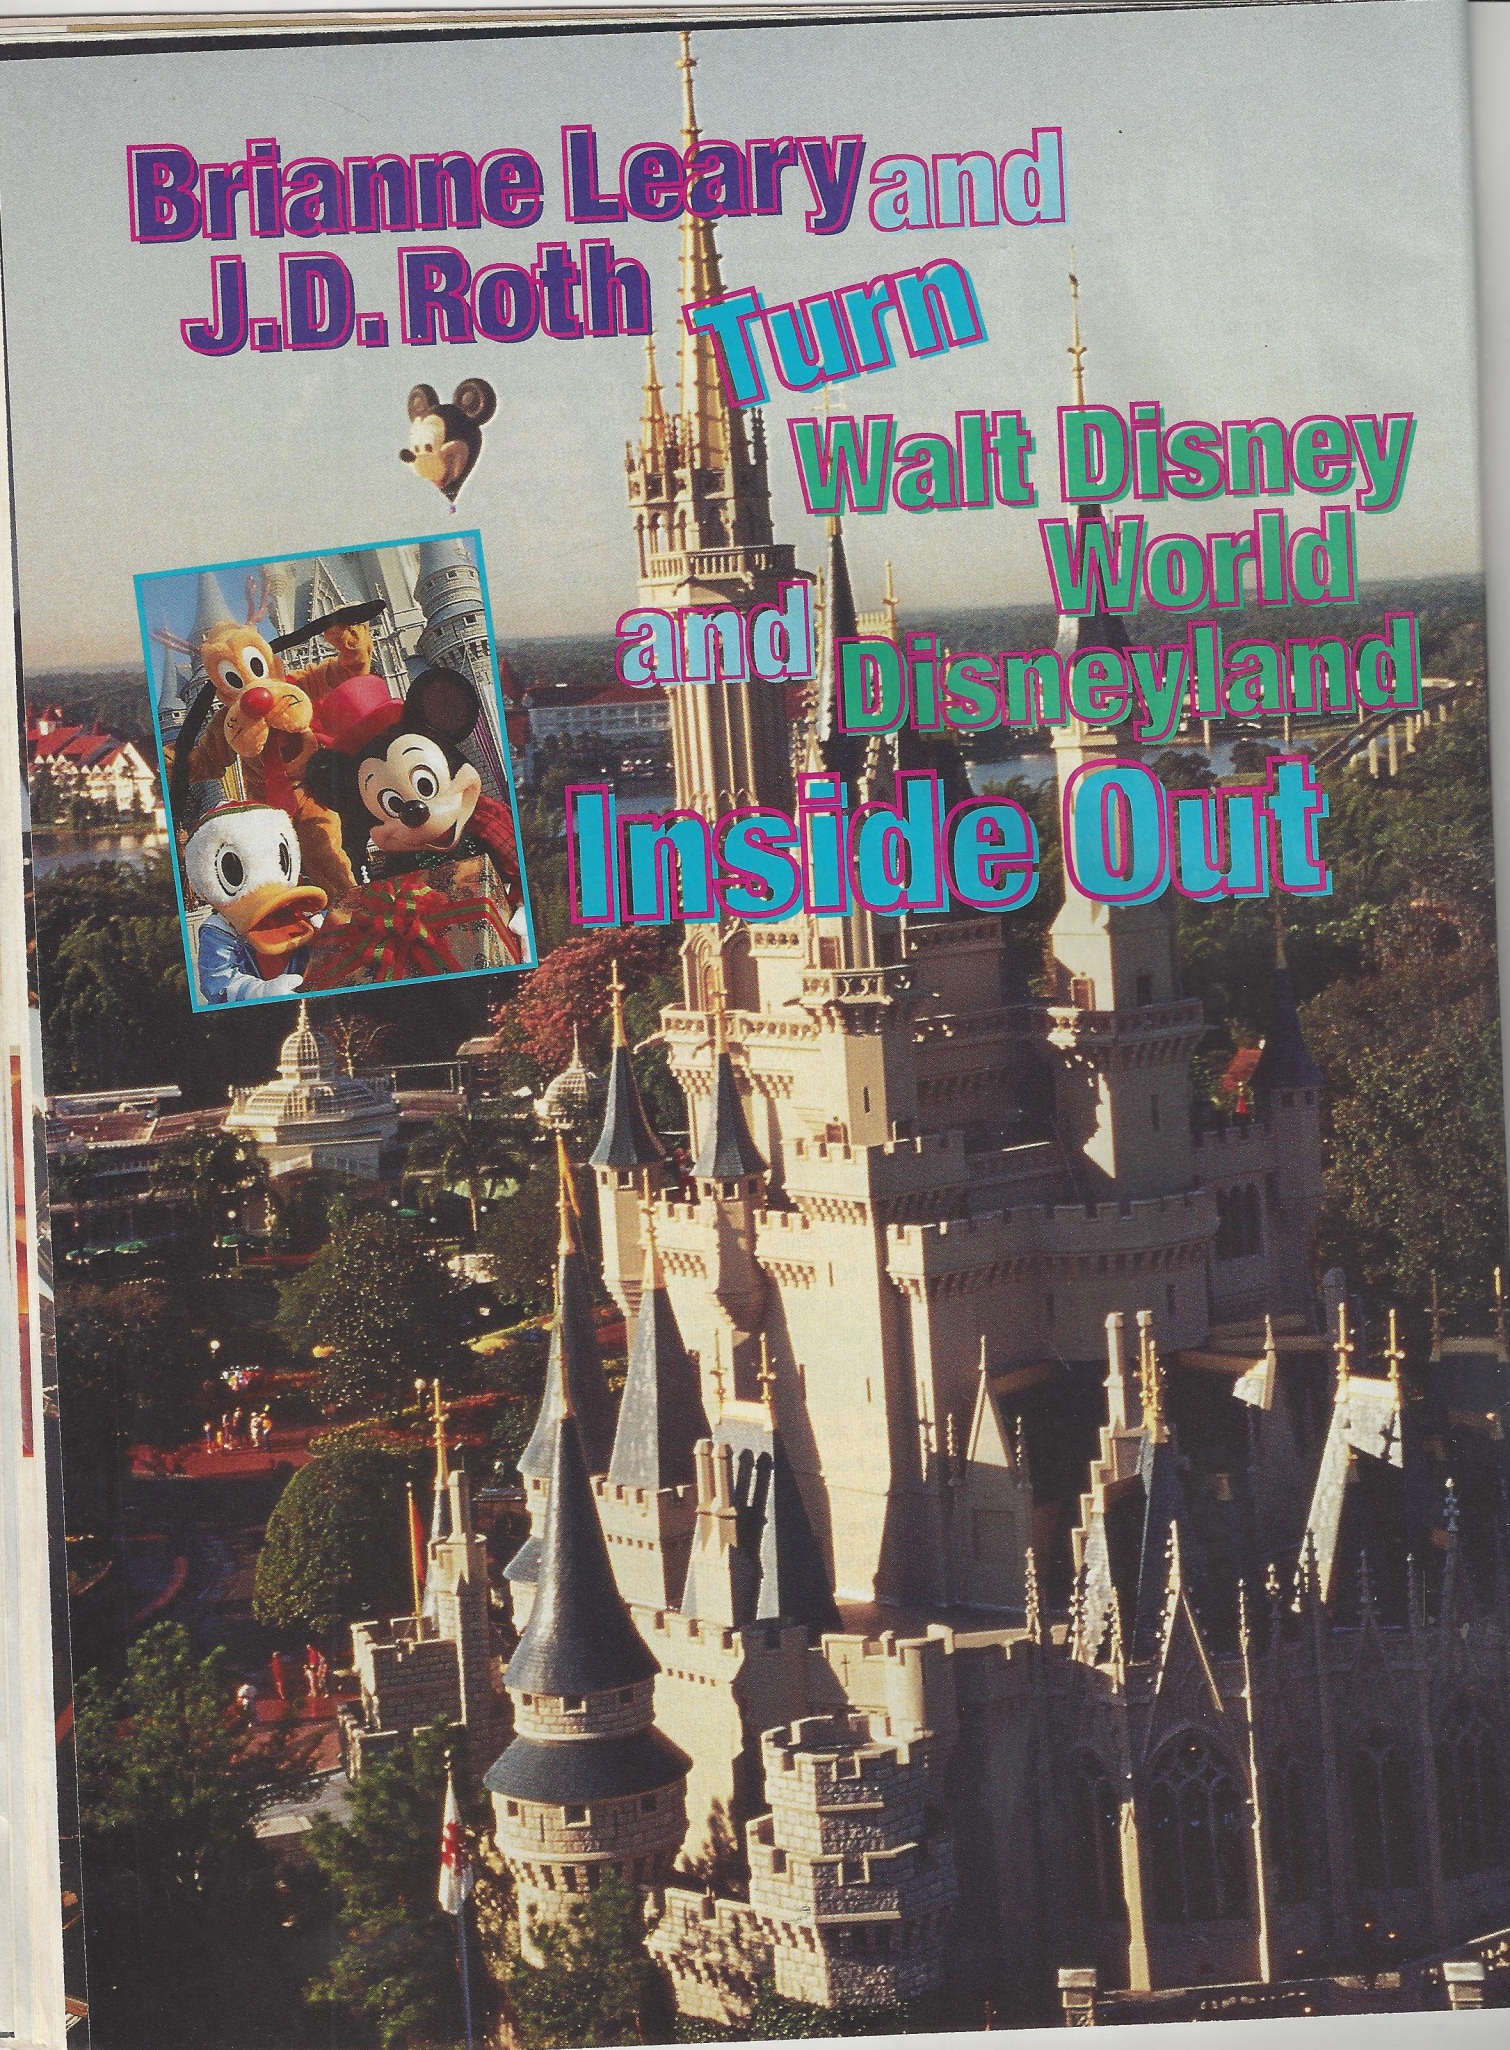

About the author: An editor-at-large for Mix magazine, Mr. Bonzai has bemused the world of music lo these many decades—in fact, since he first shared fish and chips with the boys at Abbey Road Studios.

"My dad used to say I had a lot better chance being elected President of the United States than making it in the music business."

Turn

Walt Disney World
and Disneyland
Inside Out

GEORGE FOREMAN GETS TO EAT HIS WAY AROUND the world—and then is turned into a cartoon character, courtesy of those ever-mischievous animators at The Disney-MGM Studios. Brianne Leary takes a fateful plunge on the Tower of Terror and then dives into a lagoon teeming with sharks. (The sharks survived; so did Brianne). And J.D. Roth goes behind the scenes to discover how The Haunted Mansion actually works—before exploring the depths of what may be the world's largest laundry facility.

Each week Inside Out is your passport to a behind-the-scenes tour of Disney magic Welcome to Inside Out, The Disney Channel's new weekly series airing Tuesday evenings at 8:30 p.m. (7:30 Central), beginning December 12. It's a backstage pass that takes you behind many of the scenes of Walt Disney World—and of Disneyland.

Weighing in with his own unique perspective—you're literally in "George's Corner"—is heavyweight champion George Foreman.

"We're really jazzed about the show," says Brianne Leary. Brianne, an actress, journalist, writer, and producer adds, "I'd been to Disneyland as a girl, but I'd never been to Orlando before. This place is enormous."

Brianne describes her segments of Inside Out as being spontaneous. "I like to stop people in the park and just start talking to them. For some reason—dare we call it a talent?—people have always felt like talking to me and telling me about themselves."

As for J.D. Roth, the former host of the hip teen series Fun House, "It totally blows my mind to be hangin' behind the scenes in Walt Disney World. I mean, the other day I went behind the scenes of The Haunted Mansion. This is the totally cool ride from my childhood. And here I am learning how this ride works. Life here is a thrill."

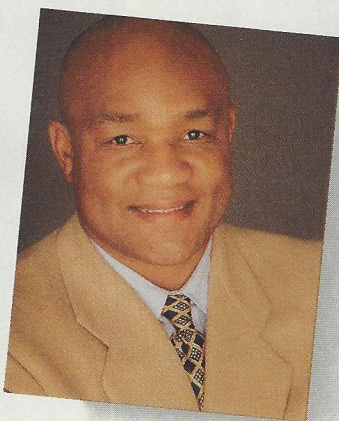

So what are some of Brianne's and J.D.'s favorite moments now that episodes of Inside Out are in the can?

"Swimming with sharks," Brianne blurts out. "They give you a snorkel and in you go. And these sharks are in the lagoon swimming around, actually sort of ignoring you. I just hope they keep them well fed."

"What can I say," Brianne shrugs. "I've covered stories in Afghanistan; I accompanied Sidney Schanberg (of The Killing Fields fame) when he returned to Cambodia. This year I hope to go to North Korea. Swimming with sharks was the closest I could get to being a war correspondent."

Joking aside, Brianne admits "that for one segment they made me ride the Tower of Terror for what seemed a thousand times. Alone. At night. With that creepy voice overhead just before you step in the elevator. I want you to know those screams you hear are not acting. Those were real screams. It was weird and scary. But then it could be worse. They sent J.D. to the laundry."

J.D. found his tour of the laundry facility at Walt Disney World a truly startling and revealing experience. "You don't think of laundry when you think of Walt Disney World," J.D. points out, "but somebody has got to do it!"

"I mean, this is definitely the largest laundry facility in the United States. It can turn out 15,000 pounds of laundry in an hour. And what's weird is that the people who sort the dirty stuff never get to see the clean stuff. This laundry never stops.

"One of the cool stories I heard on the tour," J.D. adds, "was from the lost and found department. A family called and said their little girl was missing her teddy bear. They shut the entire plant down and hunted through the laundry until they actually found this little bear. And the person who found the bear returned it to the little girl."

"I love stories like that," J.D. says. "There are hundreds of unsung people who make Walt Disney World a magical place, and I'm glad we can tell some of their stories."

Both Brianne and J.D. are looking forward to working with their other teammate. "I can't wait to meet George Foreman," Brianne says. J.D. chimes in, "George's Corner' is going to be real cool—but I hope he's ready for what they have in store for him on Discovery Island. I know I'll be following his advice on food and dining."

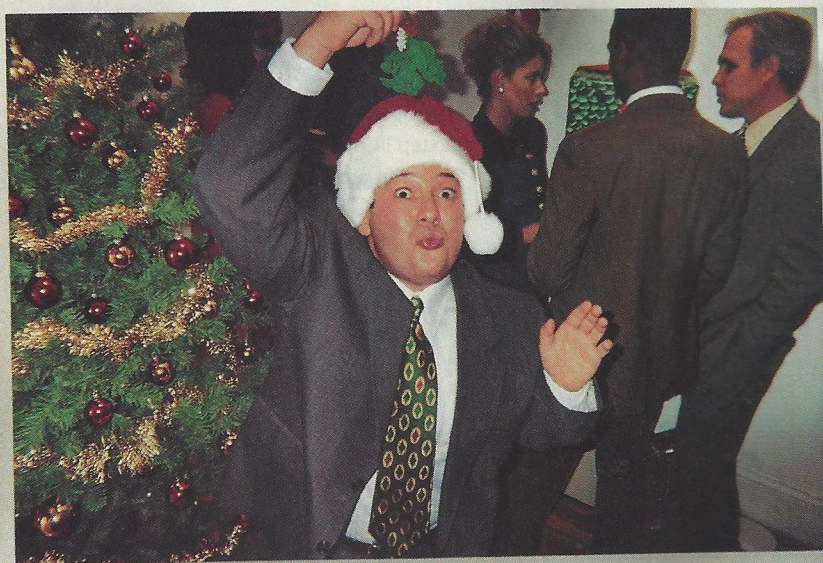

As for working together, the co-hosts see their styles as complementary. "I'm a little more edgy," Brianne says. "I love working with J.D. because we play off each other perfectly." To which J.D. replies, "Brianne is great, man. There's a definite chemistry there. We get together and the sparks fly."

So join Inside Out on December 12 as Brianne Leary and J.D. Roth let the sparks fly. After all, it's your backstage pass to the wonders of Walt Disney World and Disneyland—and what other show on television can dish up George Foreman as a restaurant guide?

Inside Out* will take you behind the scenes at Walt Disney World and Disneyland. The weekly series premieres Tuesday, December 12 at 8:30 Eastern/Pacific Time (7:30 Central)

A LITTLE "TENDERNESSE" WITH AL JARREAU

CLAUDE GASSIAN

IN 1993 AL JARREAU received a Grammy for Best R&B Male Vocal. That brought Jarreau's tally of Grammy wins to three—and with each win coming in a different vocal category. (Jarreau's other Grammy wins: Best Pop Male Vocal Performance in 1981 and Best Jazz Vocal Performance in 1977.) This is all preface to Jarreau's latest album—and this special. Entitled Tenderness, it's a haunting mix of standard songs taken from all three genres, blues, pop, and jazz. Working with acclaimed producer Marcus Miller and an ensemble of talented musicians, Jarreau has created a classic. The songs range in scope from "Try a Little Tenderness" to "She's Leaving Home" and "Summertime." Adding to the concert is a live audience. With Tenderness Al Jarreau demonstrates why he's been a Grammy-winning performer for three decades.

Magical World of Disney

TAKING TO THE ICE FOR D2 THE MIGHTY DUCKS

WHEN IT CAME TIME TO CREATE THE sequel to Disney's 1992 smash comedy The Mighty Ducks, screenwriter and co-producer Steven Brill added a twist to the storyline: instead of a cross-town rivalry as in the first film, D2 The Mighty Ducks would embroil the team in international competition. "They're a metaphor for America," Brill says of the Ducks. "We wanted to make America the symbol for the Ducks and vice-versa. All very well and good—but it also meant that the cast had to look like players of an international caliber. Enter hockey coach Jack White. "In the first film, none of the kids were supposed to play well, and they didn't," White says. "But in D2, they've gone to the next level of international competition and had to play and skate convincingly." That meant eight rigorous weeks of hockey camp for everyone, including Emilio Estevez, before filming started. At the end of the camp White gave his pupils high marks. "It was amazing to see how far they progressed and how seriously all of them bonded with the game."

THE STORY OF SQUANTO

IT IS TRUE THERE WAS A YOUNG WARRIOR named Squanto," explains producer Kathryn F. Galan, "who was kidnapped by English slave traders. We know that after learning their language and customs, he found passage back to North America. However, by the time he returned, he found his family had died of a virus brought by Europeans." Thus the stage is set for Squanto: A Warrior's Tale, a family adventure story about the young warrior who makes a separate peace with the Pilgrims, enabling them to survive their first harsh year in North America. Directed by Xavier Koller, whose film Journey of Hope won the Academy Award for best foreign film in 1991, Squanto stars Adam Beach. "I was attracted to the character and to the heart in the story," says the young Native American. "I think the film is about keeping your spirit, and finding out who you are inside, and getting the courage to search for your goals. I also liked the fact that this is a period piece because it brought me to learning the traditional ways of our people."

My Favorite Toy is so SMART It Grows with me!

This talking workstation is an easel or a desk that guides kids through 8 different levels of learning! The drawing board gets creativity going, asking kids to draw basic shapes and later, works of art. The alphabet pegboard challenges kids as they progress from colors and letters to more advanced spelling and rhyming. It's a continuing education in fun!

Shines with Pixie Dust!

©The Walt Disney Company

Think how many dreams have come true at Disneyland since its opening forty years ago. Maybe you were one of the lucky ones who got to visit the Sleeping Beauty Castle and meet the two most loved mice in the world. A trip to Disneyland remains a trip to enchantment for all ages.

Now the sparkling joy of America's most beloved theme park has been captured on a fine porcelain collector's plate from the Bradford Exchange. In this special 40th Anniversary issue, Tinker Bell welcomes you with a trail of glittery Pixie Dust!

The "Sleeping Beauty Castle" plate, 8 1/2 inches in diameter and surrounded with 22-karat gold, is backed by the Bradford Exchange 365-day money-back guarantee. Best of all, this hand-numbered treasure can be yours for just $29.95. It is issued in a limited edition, so please order yours today. Send no money now. Just mail the coupon and soon this sparkling remembrance of Disneyland will be yours.

"Sleeping Beauty Castle"

YOUR BRADFORD EXCHANGE ADVANTAGES:

- A hand-numbered limited-edition plate with a correspondingly hand-numbered Certificate of Authenticity
- A complete plate story detailing the significance of this first-of-its-kind plate with original art by Disney artists
- Charming new art on fine porcelain that sparkles with platinum
- The Bradford Exchange—"The Heart of Plate Collecting"—yesterday, today and for the next 100 years
